Rabbi Defends British Policy

The policies and actions of the British Government in Palestine were defended in New York by a British rabbi, the Rev. Dr. Israel I. Mattuck, chief minister of the English Union of Liberal and Progressive Synagogues.

Dr. Mattuck, an opponent of political Zionism, declared in an interview at the Biltmore Hotel that much of the criticism directed against Britain was based on "some misconception of the problem of Palestine." The interview was arranged by the American Council for Judaism, Inc.

"Sympathy for the suffering Jews and the strong urge to help them have surrounded the question of immigration into Palestine with an intense feeling which finds its expression in criticism of Britain."

"But the immigration of Jews into Palestine continues; it has never stopped. The number is substantial though pathetically small compared to the need. But the limitation is not due to any lack of sympathy on the part of Britain."

Dr. Mattuck was born in the U.S. and retains his American citizenship.

Rosenwald Asks U. S. Widen Law For Entry

Specifications for liberalising American immigration laws to aid displaced persons were presented to President Truman in Washington by Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the American Council for Judaism, Inc.

Mr. Rosenwald, accompanied by Sidney Wallach, a member of the organization's executive committee, also renewed a plea for the prompt implementation of all recommendations of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine. The Council's views were set forth in a letter handed to Mr. Truman in which the liberalisation of the immigration laws was de... the "key" to the solution ... presented by almost ... of all ... to the displaced persons, without regard to the limitations of national origins. Under such legislation the maximum total immigration into the U.S. for an agreed-upon period of years will not exceed the over-all total now permissible by our immigration laws."

Mr. Rosenwald pointed out that only 35,000 of the U.S. total immigration quota of 153,879 had been used in the year ended June 30, 1946, the most recent year for which figures are available. He recognized that the proposal would be opposed "very vigorously" by some members of Congress but he felt that the cause was by no means hopeless.

The Council, in its letter to Mr. Truman, renewed its appeal "that official acceptance and approval be given at once to all of the recommendations of the Anglo-American Committee as a matter of policy and that prompt action be taken to implement all of their recom-

United Jewish Appeal Goal Is $170,000,000

American Jews were asked to raise $170,000,000 in 1947 to carry their war-dislocated co-religionists in Europe through another year of waiting for the lifting of immigration barriers to Palestine and other countries, and to establish those who are finding their way to new homelands.

This record goal was set by the United Jewish Appeal at the final session of its four-day conference in Atlantic City after weighing requests totalling $215,000,000 for next year's budgets from its three constituent agencies, the Joint Distribution Committee, United Palestine Appeal and United Service for New Americans.

The U. J. A. fund-raising effort is one of the most ambitious in the history of the U. S. for a humanitarian purpose. A similar $170,000,000 drive was opened in October by President Truman for the Community Chests of 900 municipalities. By comparison, the American Red Cross raised $113,-000,000 in its 1946 campaign.

The hope was expressed by the committee which brought forth the quota resolution that the difference between the $170,000,000 and the agencies' requested needs next year will be raised in Jewish communities of [illegible]

Cites Medical School As Good-Will Force

Urging support of a proposed medical school in Palestine, Joseph M. Proskauer, president of the American Jewish Committee, said in New York that the need for doctors in the Middle East was desperate.

The American Friends of the Hebrew University and Hadassah are conducting a campaign to raise $4,000,000 for the medical school. It provides a "common ground upon which Zionists and non-Zionists can stand united and together," Mr. Proskauer told 200 persons at a dinner in his honor in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

The American Jewish Committee favors immediate immigration of 100,000 displaced European Jews into Palestine but opposes establishment of a Jewish state there.

Declaring that Hadassah medical services in Palestine gave aid to Jews and Arabs alike, Mr. Proskauer told of the need for training medical students in Palestine.

"Fifteen thousand Jewish doctors in Germany have been destroyed," he said. "There remain but 1,000 of the 3,700 Jewish doctors in Poland. Not only for the 600,000 Jews in Palestine, but for the hundreds of thousands in eastern Europe, in North Africa and of the near parts of Asia, it is from this medical school that we must create and maintain a reservoir not merely of medical craftsmen but highly competent physicians.

"We must do this for the sake of our Arab and Christian brethren. [illegible] to building this great institution for the training of healers of the sick."

Mr. Proskauer remarked that to help all classes of the population was both the Jewish and the American way, reports the New York Times.

"So we join together in this high endeavor," he said, "to train our young men to heal, to bring comfort and ease and surcease from pain to the myriads of all faiths and all creeds; to show to the peoples of the world that the heart of American Jewry is concerned for the good of the suffering of all their brethren; to impact on this movement the democratic way of life, which is American, and from this melting pot of high ideals to develop the first medical school in Palestine as a crowning glory for the advancement of all mankind."

A medical school would deepen the significance of the Hebrew University in Palestine, Mr. Proskauer declared.

Harold Riegelman, national co-chairman of the drive, reported that $900,000 had been raised and that contributions had come from all groups of American Jews, Zionists and non-Zionists.

Mrs. Moses P. Epstein, president of Hadassah, said operation of the medical school in conjunction with the Hebrew University would make the school the only one of its kind in the Middle East.

Calls Jews Stepchildren Of Austria

About 1,700 Jews held their largest demonstration, shouting, "Never! Never!" when Dr. David Brill, president of the Jewish community, mentioned Austria's desire to see the Allied occupation troops depart.

The meeting was summoned to protest against the Restitution Law, which does not provide for the return of dwellings, places of business and other properties from which Hitler drove Jews; to protest against the alleged refusal of the Municipal Dwellings Office to consider Jews' claims and to ask that properties of Jews who died without heirs be put into a common fund to reimburse Jews whose property was destroyed.

Dr. Brill asserted that Nazism was getting stronger in Austria, that when the doors of the refugee [illegible] were opened the only

Morgenthau Sr., Former U.S. Ambassador To Turkey, Was Noted Humanitarian

Henry Morgenthau Sr., former United States Ambassador to Turkey and father of Henry Jr., who served as Secretary of the Treasury for nearly the whole Roosevelt Administration, died of a cerebral hemorrhage in his home at 1133 Fifth Avenue, New York. His age was 90. He had been in good health until he suffered the hemorrhage two weeks ago.

Mr. Morgenthau's son and his three daughters, Mrs. Mortimer J. Fox, of Peekskill, N.Y., Mrs. Paul Lester Wiener and Mrs. John Knight, were at the bedside. Mrs. Morgenthau Sr. is seriously ill and was not at home when her husband died.

In the course of his long life, Mr. Morgenthau had been an attorney, real-estate developer, philanthropist and author as well as a diplomat. Active in the Democratic party and twice chairman of its finance committee, he was intimately acquainted with Woodrow Wilson and Franklin D. Roosevelt. A founder of the American National Red Cross, he was chosen by the League of Nations as chairman of the Greek Refugee Settlement Commission in 1923.

After overcoming the most common of human difficulties—poverty—Mr. Morgenthau decided that he could and would, retire at the age of 55. At that stage of his life, however, he was to enter into what really became his life's work, namely politics, diplomacy and humanitarianism.

He was among the first to emphasize the importance of Hitler's threat to the peace of Europe. He predicted that Germany would break away from the terms of the Versailles Treaty and rearm in order to be in a position to enforce

Two Czech Yeshivas To Move To U.S.

The surviving teaching and student bodies of two famous Czechoslovakian rabbinical colleges will be transferred to the United States, according to arrangements worked out between the State Department and the Refugee-Immigration Division of the Agudath Israel Youth Council of America, it was announced by Lester Udell, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Refugee-Immigration Division.

The two Jewish institutions of religious studies which will be transplanted intact on American soil are the Rabbinical College of Neitra, whose 71 surviving divinity students and five professors have already reached Paris en route to the United States, and the Rabbinical College of Sederheler, whose total personnel was reduced by war and persecution to 46 divinity students and four professors, Mr. Udell reported.

Upon arrival in the U.S., the personnel of both rabbinical colleges will resume their studies and rebuild their institutions under the sponsorship of the Agudath Israel Youth Council.

"When these noted European rabbinical colleges are transplanted on American soil," Mr. Udell said, "they will serve as living memorials to the scores of rabbinical schools destroyed by the Nazis, whose first aim always was to destroy the souls of Jewish spiritual strength."

Both institutions are rich in Jewish tradition and their present student and teaching staffs represent only a small fraction of their pre-war enrollment. Many of the students attending the Nistra and Sederheler Yeshiva were killed while fighting with the Czech partisans against the Nazis.

Production, Not Purchasing Power, Key To Prosperity, B Of M President Asserts

Deposits At Peak, Near 1 3/4 Billion Dollars — 100,000 New Accounts To Total 1 1/2 Million

INCREASE IN LOANS REFLECTS WAR-TO-PEACE TRANSITION

Montreal, Dec. 3 — One of the "immediate and urgent tasks" confronting Canadians is to put a sound foundation of production under the present high level of purchasing power, George W. Spinney, C.M.G., president of the Bank of Montreal, said at the recent 129th annual meeting of the bank.

At the same meeting, the bank's general manager, E. C. Gardner, reviewed the progress of the bank during the year and revealed that demand for banking services had reached unprecedented levels. Deposit accounts had increased by 100,000 during the year to reach 1,500,000 or 40 per cent more than in 1939.

Mr. Spinney expressed guarded confidence in the ability of Canada to meet economic conditions of the future, but added that he noted a number of popular beliefs about such conditions which now were "an absolute hindrance to a clear-sighted appreciation of the fundamentals of progress and welfare." He gave as one such belief "the still prevalent idea that purchasing power rather than production is the main spring of employment, income and material well-being.

"Money is, after all, a claim on the productive resources of the community . . . We cannot, as a people, become wealthier simply by obtaining more money for producing the same or less . . . no device or formula can produce wealth and well-being without work, enterprise and the assurance of reward."

Discussing the fact that millions of man-days of production had been lost during the past year, Mr. Spinney said that "no one sector of this complex unity called Canada can suffer without all other elements feeling the pinch. We have a vested interest in each other's well-being."

Questions High Taxation

Speaking of taxes, Mr. Spinney said "I suggest that the concept of high taxation as an anti-inflationary measure in peacetime may be far from valid . . . Wartime taxation was an important weapon in the fight against inflation. But have we not already more than a little evidence that high taxation in peacetime is likely to have an entirely opposite effect?"

Of social security measures Mr. Spinney said he believed that a certain amount of social security planning had a place in the Canadian economy, but that if it is to supplant the personal integrity that goes hand in hand with providing for one's future, "then I believe that we will tend to become soft," so that both incentive to enterprise and capacity for effort will be seriously undermined.

"It is good," he said, "to stand on one's own feet—good for the individual and good for the national fibre."

General Manager's Address

In his report, Mr. Gardner told of deposits at a new year-end high of $1,736,000,000, an increase of $123,000,000 over the previous year. He expressed the view that this growth was "a tribute to the thrift and common sense of our people, and a strong bulwark against the inflationary potential of an increased money supply."

Transition from wartime to peacetime production was reflected in the higher level of commercial loans, Mr. Gardner said, and added that "current loans and discounts in Canada at $977,000,000 compare with $302,000,000 at October 31, 1945." This represents a general and diversified business advance to manufacturers, wholesalers, traders, farmers and primary producers.

"The volume of personal loans has shown considerable expansion, reflecting the increased availability of civilian goods and the resumption of normal family living. This includes a substantial number of loans to veterans to assist in their plans for rehabilitation."

The General Manager observed that many branches were suffering from lack of adequate space but indicated that, although certain measures had been taken during the past year, the full program of the bank would not be put into operation until the urgent need for housing, particularly among the veterans, had been met.

Commenting on the work done by the Bank of Montreal staff during and since the war, Mr. Gardner said, "It is our constant aim and endeavour to ensure that our employees are compensated fully as well as those in comparable positions in industry and commerce. While in recent years our policies have been subject to the limitations of wartime controls, the salaries of individual members of the staff are reviewed and increased periodically in recognition of efficient service and advancing responsibilities."

Says Palestine Jews Will Not Kow-Tow

Dr. Tuviah Berlin of Jerusalem, a former major in the British Army, reported at Atlantic City that the Jewish community in Palestine is stronger and more determined to live as a free people than ever before.

Addressing 1,000 delegates at the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Mizrachi Organization of America, Dr. Berlin, son of Rabbi Meyer Berlin, Jewish Palestine leader, reported to the conclave for the Jews in Palestine.

"The Jewish community will not kow-tow nor yield to fascistic force," he declared. "Despite all oppressive measures, it will assiduously continue the upbuilding of its homeland."

Mrs. B. J. Goldstein of New York, president of the Mizrachi Women's Organization of America, who recently returned from Palestine, reported that it is a "virtual prison State." She added, however, that "despite all restrictions, Jewish pioneers are still building new settlements and tending their flourishing agriculture projects."

Lieut. Benjamin Woodworth, British Army officer who shot Abraham Rosenberg in the back during the Tel Aviv siege, has been found guilty of manslaughter by a court martial.

The French government has promised to issue 7,000 transit visas for Polish Jews, 2,000 of them for children, as part of 50,000 to be issued to Polish Jews eventually.

three pounds fish
two large onions one egg
salt and pepper
one slice bread or one-quarter cup matzoh meal or one-quarter cup cracker-crumbs one-quarter celery-root

Clean fish, which may be a combination of pike, whitefish, and sucker. Remove whole skins, and then bone fish. Grind the flesh with one onion, then add the meal, or the crumbs; or the bread, soaked in cold water, and squeezed out. Then add salt and pepper to taste, the egg, and one cup cold water. Mix well, until smooth. Wash the skins and cut into slices, so that the slices can be filled with the fish. Place the rolled fish-balls in the fish-kettle, sprinkle salt and pepper over the fish. Add the fish heads, the bones, and cut up celery, and the remaining onion, cut up; cover with boiling water, and cook rapidly at first, and allow to boil for about an hour. Lift the fish up from the bottom of the pot, from time to time, adding more cold water if necessary, and cook altogether for about two hours, or longer, uncovered, until the water has evaporated, watching to see that the fish is not sticking or burning.

Noted American Makes Plea For Support Of Zionists

Apart from considerations of justice or mercy, it is a matter of sheer self-interest for the British Empire to look with favor on the establishment of a strong, prosperous Jewish homeland in Palestine, James G. McDonald, U.S. member of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry on Palestine, said in Montreal at a public meeting in Temple Emanu-El. Mr. McDonald said that as a "good imperialist"—a man who has always regarded the British Empire as one of the great creative forces of the world—he could not understand the failure to implement the report made by the Committee of Inquiry on May 1 of this year.

The report, he said, was the unanimous agreement of an "international jury." Its conclusions, that the "pitiful remnant" of European Jewry could not expect to live in safety or decency in their former homes in Eastern Europe, that the huge majority of them were genuinely anxious to go to Palestine, that 100,000 Jews should be admitted at once, that anti-Jewish land and rental laws in Palestine should be dropped and that Palestine could easily support those Jews who wished to go there were, he said, the carefully formed conclusions of 12 men of different outlooks and of previously varied opinions.

Yet today, he said, six months after the publication of the report "nothing whatever has been done to implement the suggestions contained therein."

He could not but believe, he said, that the British Empire particularly was "being badly served by the policy of hesitation and doubt" which it has adopted on the Palestine question."

Some excuse could have been found for yielding to Arab pressure in 1939, he said, when a "pitifully weak" Britain stood alone against a great German foe but even then the British made a mistake for the Arab "never has been and never will be" a friend of the British. The Grand Mufti, a pro-German during the war, is the most popular figure today among the Arabs in Palestine and perhaps in the whole Arab world, he said, and the Arabs, as evidenced in Egypt, do not want the British in any of their territories. No Jew that he had met, on the other hand, he said, was not willing to have the British remain in the Middle East as long as British interests required it.

The result of the policy of hesitation and doubt on implementing the recommendations of the Commission, he said, was to bring a feeling of bitter frustration and resentment on the part of the Jewish people. Many of the younger men have fallen back on the saying that "the rifle is the one argument universally understood" and a wave of terrorism, reprisal and more terrorism has resulted.

It is hard for those not directly concerned to grasp the effect on the minds of these young Jews, he said, of the fact that 6,000,000 of their fellow-Jews had been slaughtered in Europe in the past decade. They knew, he said, that mostly the Jews had gone to the slaughter pens "like dumb animals" and were determined that in Palestine at least they would die to the last man, if necessary, but die fighting for what they regarded as their lawful homeland.

Among those on the platform were: Rev. Father W. McWalter, assistant rector of Loyola College; Very Rev. K. C. Evans, dean of Christ Church Cathedral; Rabbi Dr. Harry J. Stern, of Temple Emanu-El; Rev. Dr. D. Kilpatrick, Rev. D. L. Ritchie, Rabbi Dr. C. N. Denburg, Rev. Dr. F. W. Norwood. The speaker was introduced by Samuel Paperman and thanked by Lawrence Marks.

"We Jews want a free Austria, but one free from Nazis," he continued. "Nazis are today the beloved children of Austria and we are the stepchildren. We remain exiles and unwanted in this state. The Nazis have no fear of the Austrian authorities. They fear only the Allies."

American military police and a large group of Jewish refugees in a camp near Linz clashed after a visit by Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein, U. S. European occupation forces' advisor on Jewish affairs.

American military reports said one Jew was shot through an arm and two military police were so badly beaten they had to be removed in an ambulance. Other participants suffered minor injuries.

Jewish sources reported that three Jews were wounded, one dangerously, and three military police were severely injured.

The incident arose from the decision of a group of Jews to tear down one of the barracks and use it for fuel. Camp authorities tried to halt this and the conflict started.

According to Jewish sources the military police fired at least three times, wounding three men, and were then attacked with stones and anything else available, after the riot soldiers quite [illegible]

A Defender Of Truth Spoke

For the past few months the truth concerning Jewish Palestine has been much crucified in our fair city that boasts of a supposedly free press. It was more than comforting therefore to listen to Mr. James G. McDonald, the distinguished United States member of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry, who spoke at Temple Emanu-El on "What Next In Palestine?" The Temple on this occasion was crowded to overflowing by an audience of Jews and Christians. Some of the most distinguished of citizens of our Montreal community were present. On the pulpit platform sat leading members of the clergy among whom were: Rev. Father W. McWalter, assistant rector of Loyola College; The Very Rev. K. C. Evans, Dean of Montreal; Rev. Dr. George Kilpatrick, Principal, United Theological College; The Rev. Dr. L. Ritchie; Dr. Chaim Denburg, Rabbi of Chevra Kadisha Synagogue; The Rev. Dr. F. W. Norwood, Minister of St. James United Church.

Mr. McDonald spoke with authority for he knows the facts in the case. He was a member of a distinguished jury of twelve who heard arguments from Jew, Arab and Briton. He saw the tragedy of the pitiful Jews who are still languishing in European concentration camps. He saw Palestine and the miraculous achievements of the Jews in Palestine in the rebuilding of Eretz Israel.

It was as a good friend of the British Empire, and as one who regards the Empire as one of the creative forces of the world, that he could not understand the failure by Britain to implement the report made by the Committee of Inquiry on May 1 last that 100,000 Jews be admitted at once into Palestine. Mr. McDonald rightly pointed out that this committee of twelve came also to the unanimous conclusion that anti-Jew land and rental laws in Palestine should be dropped and that Palestine could easily support those Jews who wished to go there. He frankly underscored the fact that the British Empire was being badly served by a policy of hesitation and doubt which it has adopted on the Palestine question.

Mr. McDonald, in his authoritative exposition on Palestine, made it very clear that the Arab never has been and never will be a friend of the British. Recall the role of the Mufti, he added, [illegible] disturbances caused by some young Jews in Palestine were due to a feeling of bitter frustration and resentment. Six million Jews were slaughtered in Europe during the past decade. These went to their death "like dumb animals." But in Palestine young Jews are determined they will die to the last man, if necessary, fighting for their lawful homeland.

In his factual, dignified and unbiased address at Temple Emanu-El, Mr. McDonald helped much to destroy the falsification spread about Zionism in this city by a prejudiced press serving vested interests and not the cause of truth, the only thing that will set men free.

We rejoice that such a Christian apostle of truth came to our city at this particular time. We also rejoice that our own Montreal Christian community has to its credit a goodly company who are "truth-seekers" and who were shamed by the attacks recently made in public forum and in the press on political Zionism and Zionists generally.

In the Jewish tradition non-Jews of the nobility of a Mr. McDonald are classed among the "Chasidie Umos Ho-Olom", they are "men of righteousness" whose names are counted for a blessing and whom suffering Israel will ever remember as humanitarians and the builders of the Kingdom of God on earth.

A Return To Sanity

By R. H. S. Crossman, In The New Statesman And Nation

The well-advertised activities of the Jewish terrorists must not divert attention from the real improvement in Anglo-Jewish relations which has taken place during the past three weeks. The Stern Gang and the Irgun Zvai Leumi have been able to increase their prestige and strength prodigiously as the result of British policy since last May. Evidence of their increased popular support is the fact that the Revisionists, the Party which supports them, received 16 per cent. of the votes in the recent Zionist elections in Palestine.

Both groups are also undoubtedly far larger to-day than they were last June when the Cabinet decided to crush them with the full force of the British Army. Indeed, their terrorist activities are now more widely extended than they were before the military operation began. The Revisionists have also increased their hold on Jewish communities outside Palestine, for instance, in South Africa.

It is a curious fact that, at the moment when every policeman in London is mobilised against Jewish terrorism, a Revisionist paper is still being sold on the bookstalls, and funds are being openly collected throughout England — not to mention the U. S. A. — to support the campaign of violence.

The reason for the new wave of terrorism is the imminent "danger" of a sensible settlement. The Stern Gang and the Irgun are both fighting for a Jewish State in the whole of Palestine and Transjordan, the programme to which the Revisionist Party still adheres. They are far happier when the British Government is playing into their hands, as it was last summer.

What they most fear is a sane British policy which would restore to the responsible Jewish leaders, and in particular to the Jewish Agency, the prestige and authority which had been undermined by British intransigence. It is no exaggeration to say that the release of the Jewish leaders from Latrun, the removal of General Barker, and the transference to other posts of the two Palestinian officials who personally advocated the rejection of the Anglo-American Report and the use of strong-armed methods against the Agency.

Equally unpalatable to these extremists is the emergence of Arthur Creech-Jones as a Colonial Secretary who understands the problem and is determined to achieve a settlement if humanly possible. They realise that, if he succeeds, the popular support for terrorism may soon disappear. They must seek to destroy the spirit of compromise, both on the Jewish and on the British side, while it is still possible to do so.

The parallel with Ireland after the last war is uncanny. There, too, a British Government, by a savage policy of repression, created a terrorist movement pledged to oppose partition, whose activities included bomb throwing in Downing Street. There, too, conciliation began so late that, even after the settlement, the Irish Government had to fight its own extremists, and in the second Civil War Michael Collins was shot by men who a few months before had served under his leadership. This is the future which faces the responsible Jewish leaders even if a reasonable settlement is soon achieved. It is a terrible prospect, but they face it with coolness and courage.

The chances of a speedy settlement are better today than at any time since the publication of the Anglo-American Report last May. An American official, closely concerned with Palestine, remarked recently that when the American Administration puts its foot into it, it always puts the other foot in as well to make matters worse. When the British Government makes a terrible mistake, it is a past master at the art of getting out of it without too much loss of face. This especially is the case [illegible] weeks ago was a dangerous fiasco.

rist, had lunch with Lord Inverchapel, and that Mr. Shertok, whose complicity with the Irgun was supposed to have been proved by the White Paper last July, is now released without a stain on his character.

The fact is that at long last the Cabinet has discovered that the Jews of the National Home cannot be bludgeoned by brute force into compliance with British strategic requirements, and that the Jewish Agency leaders, confirmed in office by an overwhelming Palestinian vote are the only people capable either of restoring law and order in Palestine or of negotiating a settlement.

Meanwhile, in America, an equally welcome return to sanity is observable — after the election. The feud between a pro-Arab State Department concerned with Middle-Eastern oil, and a pro-Jewish White House, concerned with New York votes, seems to have been finally settled. The President's firm and sensible letter to Ibn Saud was accompanied by a secret telegram to all American officials in the Middle East, instructing them not to explain it away in conversation with the Arabs as a piece of domestic politics. On the other hand, the State Department has been placated by the decision of the President to surrender the conduct of the negotiations to Mr. Byrnes and his permanent officials.

Ibn Saud's mild reply has exploded the myth that he would proclaim a Holy War against the Jews if the White Paper were repudiated. It seems probable that the Arab League, almost as much as the British and American Governments, is by now heartily sick of the Palestine crisis and ready to accept with only verbal protests an Anglo-American settlement which is firmly imposed. Mr. Byrnes has made it clear that in exchange for the recognition of an independent Jewish Commonwealth in part of Palestine, America would be willing to provide considerable dollar funds for economic development of direct assistance to the Arabs.

Everything now depends on the skill and prudence of the negotiators. It would be unfair to the Jews and unhelpful to British prestige to demand that the Agency should put forward the compromise solution which is desired by all. Any solution will have to be imposed; and Jewish and Arab moderates who support it will do so knowing full well that they have to fight their own extremists. What is needed immediately is willing Jewish co-operation in the conference; then, when it is clear that no agreed solution is possible, the imposition by Britain, with the backing of America, of a plan which ends the Mandate, destroys the Police State, and gives independence to Jew and Arab alike.

her demands, and that Mussolini would have much to say about the future European balance of power.

Mr. Morgenthau was against Zionism, regarding that movement as the "blackest error." He declared that "Zionism is the most stupendous fallacy in Jewish history," adding that "it is wrong in principle and impossible of realization; that it is unsound in its economics, fantastical in its politics and sterile in its spiritual ideals. Where it is not pathetically visionary, it is a cruel playing with the hopes of a people blindly seeking their way out of age-long miseries."

As a real estate man he had made a name for himself and had amassed a fortune, and in the course of events he had formed a wide circle of close friends.

He met Woodrow Wilson, then Governor of New Jersey, in 1911. His acceptance of Wilson's leadership was "instant and decisive," and he became his most enthusiastic backer for the Presidency in 1912. Mr. Morgenthau's political debut was as chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee. In 1916, after having passed the intervening years as Ambassador to Constantinople, he again filled the finance committee post and saw Mr. Wilson elected President a second time.

Later Mr. Morgenthau accomplished what was perhaps regarded as his finest achievement, namely, [illegible] which culminated with the burning of Smyrna by the troops of Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

As chairman of the Democratic finance committee in charge of the national campaign of 1912 Mr. Morgenthau was the first to introduce the budget system in the raising and expenditure of party funds.

There was talk after the first election of President Wilson that Mr. Morgenthau would be a member of the Cabinet. He was appointed instead to the diplomatic service, going in 1913 to Constantinople as American Ambassador to the Sublime Porte. When the first World War came he found that, in addition to the interests of his own country, he had been elected to look after those of Great Britain, France, Italy, Russia, Belgium, Montenegro, San Marino, Serbia and Switzerland. Unlike his colleagues, Mr. Morgenthau, from the start, took a very democratic attitude. He conferred with merchants and missionaries, traveled about the country and got his information first-hand.

So well did he look after the affairs of these nations that he had consented to represent that he was showered with thanks. Jules Jusserand, then Ambassador of France at Washington, expressed the thanks of his Government.

The British Ambassador at Washington, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, sent a similar note, warmly commending "the great services rendered by the United States at Constantinople." Sir Louis Mallet, who was British Ambassador to Turkey, said that "by words and actions [illegible] tions from Sir Edward Grey, to request you to be so good as to convey to Mr. Morgenthau the deep gratitude and warm appreciation of His Majesty's Government for the friendly and invaluable assistance rendered by him."

During his stay in Constantinople Mr. Morgenthau had ample opportunity to watch the intrigues that went on between Germans and Turks, more particularly between German agents and Talaat Bey and Enver Bey. This he later published in his "Ambassador Morgenthau's Story," which was also published in England under the title of "Secrets of Bosphorus" and translated into French and other languages.

Mr. Morgenthau retained his interest in current affairs, even to the extent of personal activity, far into his late eighties. He made frequent speeches at public gatherings, and was always willing to lend his name and prestige to a cause in which he was interested. In 1939 he was one of a group which demanded repeal of the embargo on arms for the Spanish Loyalists, contending that the Loyalist defeat would be an Axis victory.

On June 19, 1919, Mr. Morgenthau was appointed to the mission created by President Wilson to investigate conditions in Poland, particularly as regards to the massacre of Jews. He spent several months there and submitted a report which showed that the reports had been somewhat exaggerated.

In 1920 he was nominated as Ambassador to Mexico, but the political situation changed and the Republicans came into power.

Wherever he went—and he traveled a good deal—Mr. Morgenthau tried to spread good-will. After his visit to Japan in 1920, Prince Tokugawa, the President of the House of Peers, said:

"There is no longer any idea of a Japanese-American war. What suspicion existed in a few minds has been expelled. We covet frequent visits by such men as Mr. Morgenthau as the most effective method of maintaining true friendship."

Mr. Morgenthau was born at Mannheim on the Rhine on April 26, 1856. His parents were Lazarus and Babette Guggenheim Morgenthau, the former a cigar manufacturer of comparatively comfortable means. His business had been largely exporting cigars to the United States, but when the tariff went up after the Civil War the trade was practically ruined, and the [illegible] decided to push [illegible] were hard and it was difficult to make more than the barest of livings. Young Morgenthau went to Public School 14 after the family had moved to Manhattan. His elementary education was completed in 1870, and he at once set about to find employment. He found work in an insurance office at $6 per week and later worked in the old Bloomingdale department store for $10 a week. In his spare time he read law books, and while studying for his bar examination taught in a night school for $15 a week.

When he had the time he attended courses at City College, but he was never graduated. He continued his law studies, however, and was graduated with an LL. B. from Columbia Law School in 1877, when he was admitted to the bar.

Mr. Morgenthau was a member of the law firm of Lachman, Morgenthau & Goldsmith from 1879 to 1899. Then he gave up his practice and entered the real estate field. He organized and was the president of the Central Realty Bond and Trust Company from 1899 to 1905, and afterward, until 1913, was president of the Henry Morgenthau Company.

Among his notable achievements were the development of 125th Street, whose importance as a cross-town thoroughfare he was among the first to see, and the development of 181st Street, the Bronx.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgenthau celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary in 1933 at Bronx House in the Bronx, which they and others founded in 1911.

mendations." These proposals, made last April 30, included the immediate admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine and the administration of Palestine under a United Nations trusteeship with ultimate self-government as the goal. The report rejected the idea of a Jewish State as well as Arab claims for dominance.

Mr. Rosenwald said that his organization, which is opposed to the Zionist movement, had taken no stand on the subsequently publicised unofficial recommendation of an Anglo-American Cabinet Committee for partitioning Palestine.

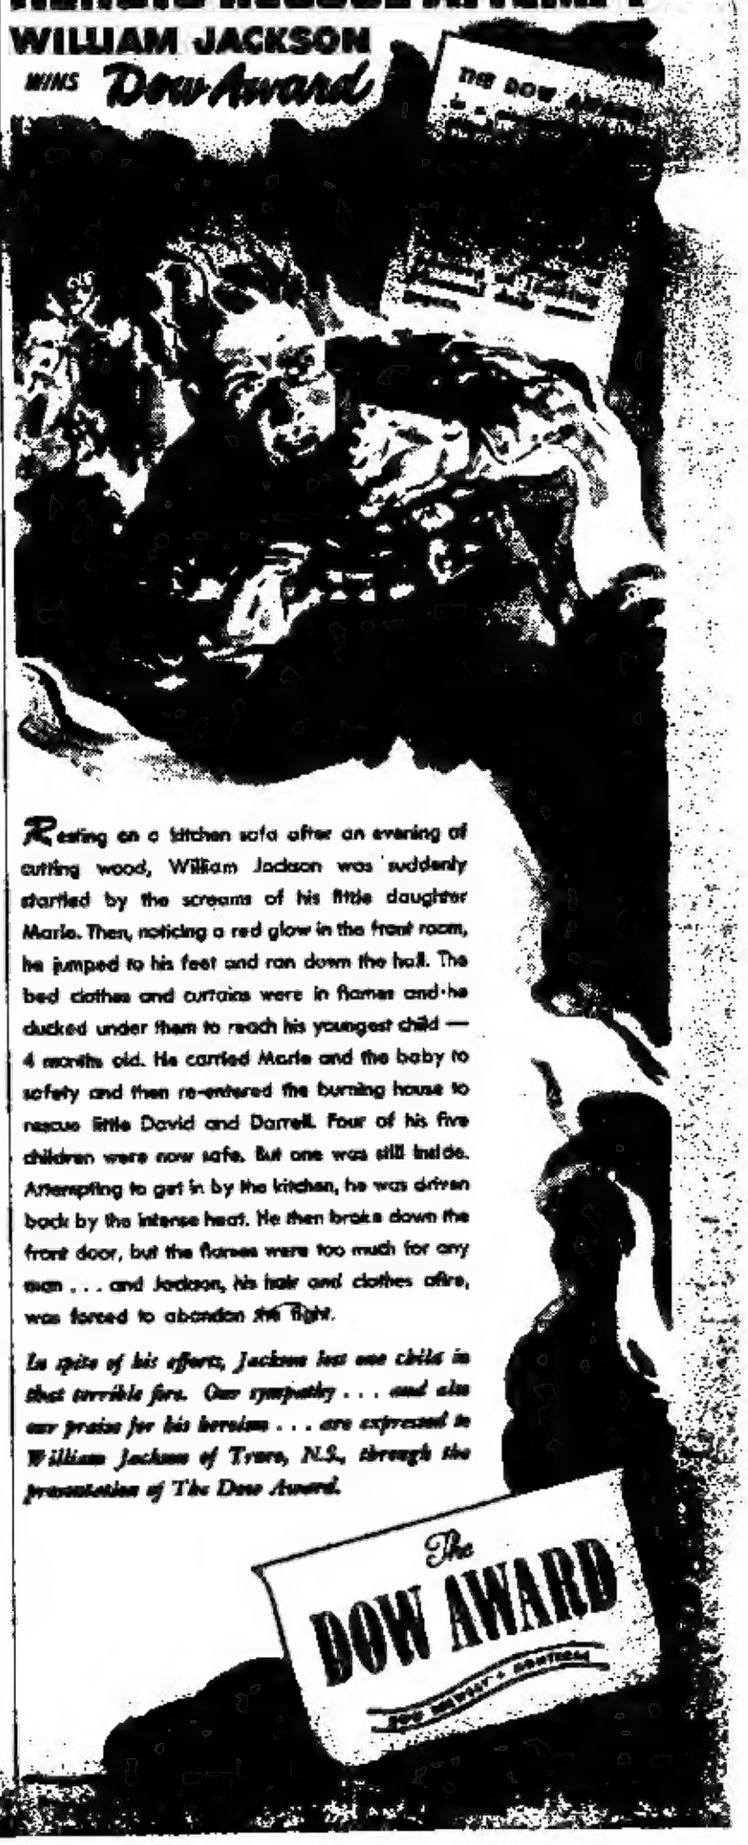
CLOTHES AND HAIR AFIRE, FATHER BATTLES BLAZE IN HEROIC RESCUE ATTEMPT

WILLIAM JACKSON WINS Dow Award



Resting on a kitchen sofa after an evening of cutting wood, William Jackson was suddenly startled by the screams of his little daughter Marie. Then, noticing a red glow in the front room, he jumped to his feet and ran down the hall. The bed clothes and curtains were in flames and he ducked under them to reach his youngest child — 4 months old. He carried Marie and the baby to safety and then re-entered the burning house to rescue little David and Darrell. Four of his five children were now safe. But one was still inside. Attempting to get in by the kitchen, he was driven back by the intense heat. He then broke down the front door, but the flames were too much for any man . . . and Jackson, his hair and clothes afire, was forced to abandon the fight.

In spite of his efforts, Jackson lost one child in that terrible fire. Our sympathy . . . and also our praise for his heroism . . . are expressed to William Jackson of Truro, N.S., through the presentation of The Dow Award.
